Former St. Clements man charged in law firm letter bombing

By Austin Grabish

A former St. Clements resident is facing multiple charges in connection with a string of letter bombs that left Winnipeg on edge and a lawyer in critical condition last week.

Guido Amsel, 49, faces two counts of attempted murder and one count of aggravated assault for sending at least three bombs disguised as small recording devices through Canada Post.

Winnipeg lawyer Maria Mitousis was badly injured after opening one of the bombs at the Petersen King law firm last Friday.

Two more bombs were found over the weekend and the search for more explosives continued Monday.

Amsel is a former St. Clements resident who lived on Nicholas Street, and Mitousis was the lawyer representing Amsel's ex-wife Iris, who still lives there.

Several neighbours were shocked to hear news of Amsel's arrest and about an apparent explosion two years ago on their quiet street.

RCMP refused to give details about the 2013 bombing Monday night, but one neighbour told the Record what he witnessed.

David Kane said during the early morning hours sometime in late November 2013, he heard what sounded like a plane crash, but when he went outside he saw remnants of an explosion near Iris' mailbox.

Brokenhead Ojibway Nation breaks new ground

Grocery store, clinic and pharmacy set to open this October

By Lindsey Enns

A new grocery store, medical clinic and pharmacy being built in Brokenhead Ojibway Nation will offer western and traditional medicine while meeting the needs of those in the community and surrounding areas.

Standing on an open field located across from South Beach Casino where all three businesses will be housed under one roof, Brokenhead Chief Jim Bear said this is a "tremendous opportunity" for their community.

"It's another milestone," Bear said following the project's sod turning ceremony last Friday. "Across the street you see South Beach Casino, we're proud of that, and it's only going to be a good place for patients who come from the north and get their health needs met."

The centre will also serve the seven southeastern tribal councils in the area along with surrounding communities, Bear said.

"They can come here and shop and get their health needs met," he said. "We're open to anyone."

Currently the closest medical clinic and pharmacy to the community is in Selkirk, which can be tough to get to for those who are ill or without transportation. However, Bear said opening up their own has nothing to do with competition.

"I think we can enhance each other ... things they can't do in Selkirk, maybe we can help do here," he said. Bear remembers going through cancer treatment and found seeking traditional medicine difficult.

Their new clinic will offer both western and traditional medical practices, making it a unique centre to this part of Manitoba.

The University of Manitoba is partnering with Brokenhead on the medical clinic. Students from U of M will be able to receive training there once it opens while offering health and clinical services.

Frank Suraci, CEO of Bond Development Corp., said the roughly $2 million project should be completed and fully operational sometime in October of this year.

Construction was set to begin this week and they are hoping to have the grocery store portion completed by mid to late September.

"We want it to be convenient, we want it to be efficient, we want it to be as good as any other supermarket, medical clinic that you would find in an urban centre," Suraci said.

Once completed, the project will also help generate revenue for the First Nation while providing essential services, Suraci said.

Cyclist braves Selkirk's smoky skies

A cyclist makes his way down Breezy Point Road in Selkirk late Saturday morning. Many cyclists could be seen riding around the area over the weekend despite smoky skies which blanketed most of Manitoba due Saskatcheto wan forest fires. The haze began to clear up on Monday thanks to cooler temperatures and increased wind.

Local clinic closure leaves patients in limbo

By Austin Grabish

A medical clinic in Selkirk has abruptly closed its doors, leaving patients who depended on the care its sole doctor provided in limbo.

The Red River Medical Clinic shut down on June 28, and provincial health officials are not sure if it will re-open or what will happen to the clinic's patients.

The walk-in clinic located in Selkirk Town Plaza appeared empty last Friday and had a sign on the door apologizing to patients.

"We sincerely apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused," the sign read.

Dr. Lamin Benshaban ran the clinic after bringing his practice to the mall in 2010.

He was previously a doctor in Gimli, and news of his clinic's closure wasn't taken well by at least one of his patients.

St. Andrews resident Debbie Kars has diabetes, high blood pressure, and shingles, and has been a regular patient of Benshaban's for more than three years.

She said he told her shortly before the clinic closed he had no choice but to shut down his practice because the space was being taken over by another tenant.

"I went to him and said 'why are you closing where are you going?'" she said. "I wanted to know what's happening."

Kars said the doctor has been instrumental in helping her manage her diabetes over the last of couple of years. "There's a lot of people that are upset that he's gone," she said. Last Friday, a Manitoba Health spokesperson said the Interlake-Eastern Regional Health Authority contacted the clinic about its closure, but had yet to receive any kind of response. The spokeswoman said the clinic is a fee-for-service practice meaning any physicians who work in it are under no contractual obligation to the RHA.

The spokeswoman said former patients of the walk-in clinic can go to the Selkirk QuickCare Clinic on Manitoba Avenue if they require care. However, the clinic is staffed only by nurse practitioners and Kars said she would prefer to see a doctor for specialized care.

"I would rather have a doctor's opinion not just a nurse's opinion," she said.

The Record reached out to Selkirk Town Plaza's property manager last Friday, but she refused to comment on the details surrounding the clinic's closure or if a new tenant was taking over the space.

Kars said the clinic's closure is another blow to a city already suffering from a doctor shortage.

"Selkirk does need doctors and we need them badly," she said. "I feel like Selkirk has lost a good doctor."

The Record was unable to reach Benshaban for comment before press time.

Road improvement projects to be completed in August

By Lindsey Enns

Two cost shared road improvement projects between the City of Selkirk and the province are set to be completed sometime next month.

Along with upgrades to Manitoba Avenue, the province is also partnering with the City of Selkirk to reconstruct part of Sophia Street between Greenwood Avenue and the railroad tracks as well as extend Wersch Street into the city's industrial park.

"Both projects are funded through the Municipal Road Improvement Program and are expected to be completed by August 2015," Municipal Government Minister Drew Caldwell said via email."Our government is investing in improving roads in the City of Selkirk and surrounding areas.

"These improvements will create jobs and provide a smoother ride for families."

Selkirk Mayor Larry Johannson said potholes along Main Street were filled earlier this summer, making for a much smoother ride down one of their busiest streets.

"We're a lot busier now I'd say then we were 10 to 15 years ago,"Johannson said in an earlier interview with the proud of our streets." Record. "It is hard on roads but I'm Com

Half Moon serves up free event for community to enjoy

Rockin' on the Red in Lockport to feature free entertainment mixed with family fun

By Lindsey Enns

Serving up a weekend of free entertainment with a side of family fun is one local restaurant owner's way of giving back to his customers and the community.

"It's a sign of appreciation for the customers and giving back," Half Moon Drive In owner Wayne McIntosh said.

The three-day event, at the Lockport restaurant's rear riverside lot located at 6860 Henderson Highway, kicks off Friday at 6 p.m. with a performance by Cold Hard Cash and later two performances by rock tribute band Free Ride along with many others.

Both Saturday and Sunday from noon to 8 p.m. there will be various children's events including amusement rides, a rock-climbing wall and face painting. On Saturday only there will be a classic car show and on Sunday hot air balloon rides will be offered. For the full event schedule, visit halfmoondrivein.com.

The free event was created when the restaurant celebrated its 75th anniversary in the summer of 2013 and McIntosh hopes to continue putting it on for many years to come.

"It's my way of giving back to the community and the customers that I have," McIntosh said, adding last year was the first year they started raising funds for the Children's Rehabilitation Foundation to help give away a mobility bicycle to a child in need living in the area by selling 50/50 raffle tickets. "During last year's event we raised $1,800, so $900 went towards the bike and $900 was won on the property."

This year McIntosh said their fundraising has been going steady and they hope to be able to give away even more cash during the draw on Sunday afternoon.

McIntosh said without various sponsors, including Selkirk's Steeltown Ford, he wouldn't be able to put on an event of this magnitude. But he admits lots of the cost comes out of his own pocket.

Bezan wants Winnipeg ISIS supporter charged with terrorism

By Austin Grabish

A Winnipeg man who has expressed his support for ISIS online and made public comments commending last October's attacks on Parliament Hill should be charged with terrorism, according to Selkirk's MP.

RCMP arrested Aaron Driver, 23, in early June on a peace bond for fear that he could participate in terrorism.

He has yet to be charged with any crime, but Selkirk-Interlake MP and parliamentary secretary to the minister of national defence James Bezan thinks that should change.

Bezan told the CBC Driver should be charged for promoting attacks against the Canadian military over comments he made in an interview to the public broadcaster.

Driver told a reporter he felt last October's attacks on Parliament Hill by Michael Zehaf-Bibeau were justified saying they served as retaliation for Canada's role in bombing Muslims overseas in Iraq and Syria.

Zehaf-Bibeau shot and killed Cpl. Nathan Cirrilo, a Canadian soldier standing on guard at a war memorial before opening fire on Parliament Hill.

Driver is reported to have caught the eye of Canada's spy authorities after posting about the Islamic State online.

"I think we have to be very careful of these individuals," Bezan said in an interview with the Record.

Bezan added there is "ample evidence" online and from CBC's interview to show Driver has supported terrorism and that deserves heavy scrutiny from police.

"These individuals that are there essentially promoting ISIS and other terror organizations have to be held to account," Bezan said.

But the Manitoba Association of Rights and Liberties says Driver's Charter rights have been violated.

As of Monday, Driver was out on bail and subject to a string of conditions that limit his freedoms, the association's spokesman Corey Shefman said.

Driver is not allowed to be in possession of a smartphone or computer, must wear a GPS monitoring device, and has had his passport taken away.

Shefman said all of those conditions limit Driver's protected freedoms under the Charter.

He said because Driver has yet to be formally charged with any crime, all of the conditions imposed on him should be dropped.

"That's important because if a person has not been charged with a crime then there's no allegation that they did anything wrong," Shefman said. "The fact that he isn't charged means the police don't think he did anything against the law. That's the important point here."

Bezan said until Driver proves he's not a threat, police should be scrutinizing him heavily.

He said although there is freedom of expression and association in Canada, with those rights come limitations.

Driver's lawyer and the Manitoba Association of Rights and Liberties were scheduled to be in court setting a date to argue their case on Tuesday morning.

Thousands help celebrate Canada Day

By Lindsey Enns

Colourful fireworks dancing in the sky above the Selkirk Waterfront was like a scene straight out of a Disney movie during this year's Canada Day celebrations.

Various volunteers, including local firefighters, pitched in to help set off nearly half an hour worth of fireworks for roughly 7,000 spectators during the local celebration in honour of Canada's 148th birthday.

Events kicked off last Wednesday with the fourth annual Canada Day walk and run, a geocaching scavenger hunt at the waterfront, free horse and carriage rides and family fun at the Kidz Zone.

Crowds also gathered for a festival on Jemima Street for street painting, a hockey tournament, live CWE Wrestling, a dunk tank and a charity barbeque in support of the Fire Fighters Burn Fund.

Selkirk Park Pool hosted sand sculpting lessons and the Marine Museum stayed open for visitors.

Later in the afternoon the waterfront started to fill up for free entertainment that went well into the evening. Free Ride opened up the show on the Sunova Stage followed by Aaron Starr, Selkirk and District Ukrainian Dancers, Spirit Steppers and more.

But the highlight again this year was the late evening fireworks display.

City of Selkirk marketing and communications coordinator Vanessa Figus said in an earlier interview with the Record that Canada Day is always their biggest event and they receive roughly $30,000 in sponsorships each year to help make it a success. Former judge's column on TRC report upsets local chief

By Lindsey Enns

For Brokenhead Ojibway Nation Chief Jim Bear, reflecting on his residential school experience brings about all kinds of emotions.

"It still affects us," Bear said wiping away tears. "Bad things don't have to happen ... like being taken away from your parents at a young age."

As a child, Bear said he learned to internalize everything, and later in life had difficulty expressing his emotions.

"You don't know how to love, how to hug, how to say'I love you,' and this is to your own children," he said.

Bear attended an Indian Residential School in Teulon which he says still isn't formally recognized by the government. He said the building has since been torn down and transformed into a healing centre.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's summary report, which was released in early June, paints a dark picture of the residential school system's legacy. The 382-page report holds thousands of witnesses' testimonies and includes 94 recommendations aimed at repairing the relationship between Aboriginal Peoples and the rest of Canada.

Although many have welcomed the report's findings, they've also faced some scrutiny. More recently, APTN National News reported former provincial court judge Bill Marantz referred to the TRC's report as the "half-truth and recrimination report" in an opinion piece which appeared in the June 24 issue of The Jewish Post & News.

Marantz wrote in his column the TRC wasted six years "splitting hairs" and "encouraging victims to wallow in victimhood" instead of "encouraging youth."

He then went on to say everyone already knows enough about Indian residential schools.

Brokenhead Ojibway Nation Chief Jim Bear speaks during a recent sod turning ceremony in his community. Bear said he's insulted by comments made by a former judge in The Jewish Post & News regarding the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's report on the legacy of residential schools.

"Any Canadian (Indian code for paleface) who is unaware of the abuses of the Residential School System, at this stage of the game, just hasn't been paying attention for the past 50 years," wrote Marantz.

The article has since been removed from The Jewish Post & News' website and the editor posted an online apology to those offended by the column's content last week.

Bear said he found it insulting a retired judge would shed such a negative light on the TRC's report and its findings.

"It's embarrassing," Bear said. "I've talked to a number of people in this community and they're totally disgusted with the remarks made about our people being in residential school.

"We do not do a comparison between the First Nations and the Jewish people ... what's happened is both wrong and should never have happened to either of us."

For residential school survivors who were stripped of their self-identity and self-esteem, there's still a lot of healing left to do, Bear said.

"Fourteen residential schools operated in the province many of them upwards of 75 years. The intergenerational effects of these schools remain with us today," Aboriginal and Northern Affairs Minister Eric Robinson said in a release on June 30, noting the

"I'VE TALKED TO A NUMBER OF PEOPLE IN THIS COMMUNITY AND THEY'RE TOTALLY DISGUSTED WITH THE REMARKS ..."

TRC's summary report and calls to action has set out recommendations for moving forward. "It is important and fitting the records of the TRC will be stored here ensuring this history is not forgotten."

Late last month, the Manitoba government passed legislation that will ensure the records being transferred from the TRC to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation (NCTR) at the University of Manitoba will be subject to freedom of information and protection of privacy legislation.

The legislation, developed in consultation with the TRC and the NCTR, sets out a privacy and access framework to guide the centre's efforts in managing the records collected by the TRC and ensures compliance with the terms of the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement.

Although it may have taken him years, Bear said he's learned to express his emotions, love his family members more openly and more importantly to forgive. He encourages other residential school survivors to do the same.

"I've learned to forgive," he said. "Best thing is to forgive, get into healing and begin to trust people."

> ARNIE WEIDL Weather, fishing heating up in the Interlake

Set RED RIVER > CHALET BEACH > LAKE WINNIPEG

Hi gang. Well, the kids are out of school and they along with family members are now flocking to our waterways casting hooked and baited or lured lines into the depths hoping to catch that special fish.

I went back to Grand Marais this last week because as I was fueling up at the Co-op in Selkirk I heard two guys beside me talking about the vigorous fishing culture that thrived there in years gone by. I've always found its long bay shoreline fascinating with the cliff-like beach front to the north and low rocky beach to the south. I parked my car at the end of a south facing lane along the shore and made for some anglers I could just see far down the water's edge through the smoky haze from the northwest forest fires that have been plaguing us lately. Getting closer to them I could see two of the men using extra long poles catching catfish, measuring and releasing them. My first impression was that these guys were dedicated anglers and I wasn't far wrong.

Tournament anglers, Roy Jones, a fit grey haired chap and his buddy Craig McGrath, a true outdoorsmen in athletic shape were trying to catch master angler sized catfish. Close by, Roy's brother Dean Jones with his two sons had finished fishing for the day and as luck would have it told me they have been summer residents here for 50 years so I asked what fishing was like many years ago. They were more than willing to enlighten us.

It seems the narrow rocky beach we were standing on used to be a wide road before the Lake Winnipeg water levels were raised. They told of a time when you could drive along here stopping at outlets to buy fish from commercial fishers who had processing plants. You could also picnic and fish off their wonderful pier now gone. I could almost see the hustle and bustle of a bygone era that Roy and Dean described and I felt a touch of sadness as I left them and headed back to Selkirk.

I stopped at the towns' pier and met angling gal Pat Calder of Selkirk sitting in a lawn chair wearing the greatest looking bright yellow T-shirt bearing the Brokenhead Ojibway Nation logo. She was a robust, soft featured, tanned lady with dark straight hair and a quick way of talking always finding humor in everything. It showed as she noted that she works with fish all day at the Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation and when she's off, what does she do; she goes fishing.

She laughed as she remembered that a few days ago she and her sister were fishing here, when her sister pulled up a catfish it had a turtle hanging on to the fish's' belly.

During the weekend I made it up to the Lake Manitoba Narrows. As I drove up to the harbour, off to my left folks were playing on the new beach and ahead of me I saw a pontoon boat coming in. After it docked I went over and introduced myself to a Clancy Solomon from Winnipeg who was here for the weekend with his family. Clancy, it turned out was a totally committed angler who fishes all over Manitoba and belongs to many angling organizations.

During our conversations Tracy MacDonald from the group told how she had just been bitten on the finger by a large garter snake that had somehow managed to get on the boat.

Later, on my way back south I stopped at the Hnausa pier where as usual folks were fishing shoulder to shoulder. In the hazy, warm late afternoon I visited with many of the anglers and eventually came across Michael De Bera from Winnipeg who had caught a nice mess of fish. He said that he caught the fishing bug a few years ago and his favorite fishing spots were here and Hecla.

Well, with the weather and fishing activity heating up, it promises to be a great summer. See you soon my friends.

Derelict boat removal bill sinks in House of Commons

By Austin Grabish

A private member's bill that would have made the federal government responsible for the removal of derelict vessels is dead in the water after a 145-133 vote in the House of Commons.

British Columbia MP Jean Crowder put Bill C-368 forward late last year, and the bill sunk at its second reading in May.

Crowder's bill would have made amendments to the 2001 Canada Shipping Act, which would have made the Canadian Coast Guard responsible for all of the country's abandoned vessels including the MS Lord Selkirk II.

Currently, the Coast Guard only deals with abandoned vessels if they are in the way of something or are an obstacle to navigation.

Crowder argued the majority of abandoned boats across the country don't pose an obstacle to anything and are therefore left to rot.

"THIS PRIVATE MEMBER'S BILL IS A SINCERE ATTEMPT TO ADDRESS THE ISSUE OF ABANDONED VESSELS AND WRECKS."

She recognized there is often a fight over who should pay for an abandoned vessel's removal between the different levels of government, and which federal department should deal with the wrecks.

"Part of the reason I brought this bill forward is that what we have out there is a jurisdictional quagmire," she said. St. Johns South MP Ryan Cleary supported Crowder's bill saying derelict vessels are a growing problem across Canada.

Cleary said in 2012 the number of derelict and abandoned vessels were pegged at 240, with the majority of those boats on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

The abandoned boats have been eyesores for residents across the country including in Selkirk.

The MS Lord Selkirk II was abandoned in 1990 and efforts to have the ship removed from the slough it's been rotting in have repeatedly gone unsuccessful.

Conservative MP Ed Komarnicki from Souris, Sask. said the Tories didn't support the bill because it did not address the bigger issue – the prevention of the abandonment of vessels.

"This private member's bill is a sincere attempt to address the issue of abandoned vessels and wrecks," Komarnick told the House. "However, when we look at the facts, we see it is clear that the bill does not provide the proper mechanisms needed to respond to the issue."

He added the bill could have unintended consequences, like encouraging boat owners to abandon their vessels relying on the federal government for their disposal.

The Tories stance on derelict vessels mirrors the one long echoed by Selkirk-Interlake MP James Bezan.

Bezan doesn't believe taxpayers should be on the hook for removing the ships. He said in the case of the MS Lord Selkirk II, legal action should be taken against the ship's owner, who although has filed for bankruptcy, may be held accountable for the rotting beast.

A spokesperson for Fisheries and Oceans Canada said the MS Lord Selkirk poses no further threat of hydrocarbon pollution so its work with the ship is done.

The Coast Guard raised the vessel in 2014 to remove hydrocarbons from the ship.

Online petition calls on gov't to remove rotting ship

By Austin Grabish

A new online petition is calling on Selkirk-Interlake MP James Bezan and the federal government to pay for the removal of the rotting MS Lord Selkirk II and remediation of toxins lurking in the waters beneath the vessel.

Selkirk resident Lois Wales started the petition on change.org last Friday.

The petition lists a string of contaminants a toxicologist found in water around the ship last year.

The online petition says the federal government has breached its responsibility to remove the ship from the slough it's been sitting in since 1990.

By Monday afternoon, it had garnered the support of 275 people, many from Selkirk, but some from as far away as Cochrane, Alta.

Wales wants the federal government to pick up the entire bill for the ship's decommissioning, which latest estimates show will be around $500,000. The City of Selkirk has awarded tender to have the boat removed, but is waiting on a cost-sharing agreement with the province before it can move forward.

Mayor Larry Johannson wants a 50/50 split between the two levels of government. The feds have said they will not chip in for the venture.

Wales said the ship is a huge environmental issue the federal government, and not the City of Selkirk, should be dealing with.

She is displeased with Bezan and his fellow Tories' stance that paying for the ship's removal would set a dangerous precedent allowing other vessels to be abandoned with taxpayers picking up the cost of their removal.

"I think it's important he realizes the citizens of Selkirk are not happy with this situation,"Wales said."Waterways and lakes are a federal responsibility." Bezan said the feds shouldn't be on the hook for irresponsible owners who abandoned their watercrafts.

"You got to remember that there are derelict vessels right across this country not just the Lord Selkirk," Bezan said. "Ultimately it is the responsibility of the owners of those vessels to be held accountable for the impact on the environment."

There has been a debate for years over who is responsible for the ship.

In cases where abandoned vessels have no legal owner that can be found, the Receiver of Wreck can get involved.

But Bezan said that hasn't happened because the MS Lord Selkirk does have a legal owner, and despite the fact the company has filed for bankruptcy, they could be held accountable.

"The Lord Selkirk ship is held by a company in New Jersey that right now is currently in creditor protection, but there is a known owner, and for that reason the Receiver of Wreck and Transport Canada rules it does not need to intervene," Bezan said.

Wales said the feds should have dealt with the ship when it was abandoned 25 years ago.

"The city has inherited this problem because of their inaction to actually do what they could under the Navigable Waters Act," she said. "It will be a costly remediation and I do not believe that should be left on a city of 10,000."

Lost loved ones were remembered at the fourth annual Forever Run last Saturday.

About 40 runners made a special tribute to friends and family members who have passed by taking part in a two, five, or 10 kilometre run.

The run started at St. Clements Church just outside of Selkirk and continued down River Road to Lower Fort Garry.

The weather didn't give anyone any trouble and no one was complaining about the scenery throughout the run. "It was awesome, beautiful," said

Winnipeg resident Lindsay Boyko.

Boyko was the first woman to finish the 10 kilometre run last Saturday.

She frequently takes part in road races in Winnipeg but said the scenery along River Road made this one stand out.

"It was a great run," she said.

Organizer Gord Dehn said the event has grown over the last four years and was a great fundraiser for the St. Clements Church.

"We had great participation and it was awesome all around," Dehn said.

Selkirk resident Linda Rosser started the run four years ago so people with lost loved ones would have a way of remembering them.

"It's to remember people, friends and family, that have passed on," Dehn said."It doesn't matter what religion you're from."

Rosser handed the run over to Dehn and it's grown ever since, he said.

"We're getting some more serious runners."

Hunt for zebra mussels continues

Provincial grant helps support local rodeo ground upgrades

The St. Andrews - St. Clements Agricultural Society is set to receive $900 in funding through a provincial grant program.

The funding will go towards purchasing a groomer for horse shows and rodeo as well as help build two moveable sheds for use at Selkirk Park's rodeo grounds.

"Manitoba's agricultural fairs, rodeos and other special events connect our communities and give us an opportunity to talk about farming and food with our neighbours," Agriculture, Food and Rural Development Minister Ron Kostyshyn said in a release recently. "This grant program helps agricultural societies ensure venues are welcoming, comfortable and ready to greet visitors from near and far."

The government is providing $94,500 in infrastructure improvement grants to agricultural societies, which will be used for fairground upgrades and other projects across the province, Kostyshyn added.

All of Manitoba's 59 agricultural societies are able to apply for funding under this program, Kostyshyn said.

This year's grants support a wide variety of projects including show rings, electrical system upgrades, livestock

Volunteers hoping to fill food bank with donation drive

By Austin Grabish

Organizers of an upcoming food drive need help filling an expected summer lull in donations to the Selkirk Food Bank.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latterday Saints will have their 10th annual Latter-day Saints Summer Food Drive next week. West St. Paul resident Tyler Anderson is leading this year's food drive, which is also happening in other communities such as Winnipeg and Stonewall.

Anderson said summer is a time where many forget about food banks. "We're just trying to get food out to the needy in a slow time for the food banks," he said.

Starting next Monday, volunteers will be canvassing neighbourhoods in Selkirk, St. Andrews, West St. Paul, and Stonewall with flyers.

An estimated 3,000 door hangers will be placed in Selkirk and Stone-wall alone.

About 80 volunteers will then collect non-perishable food donations on Saturday, July 18 from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

Selkirk Food Bank chair Marv Terhoch said the drive will be a big help to the organization, because some of its key donors like schools, are gone for the summer.

"Going into summer is always a tough time because people's attention turn to other places,"Terhoch said.

Nearly 1,000 people in the Tri-S area use the food bank every month, and the vast majority of clients are children, seniors, and single mothers, Terhoch said.

"They have jobs but it isn't enough to make ends meet," he said referring to some single mothers.

Volunteers with last year's food drive managed to raise about 2,000 pounds of food and this year they want to top that.

"We want to beat that," Anderson said.

Peak of the Market will be matching donations during this year's drive pound for pound so people are being encouraged to give what they can.

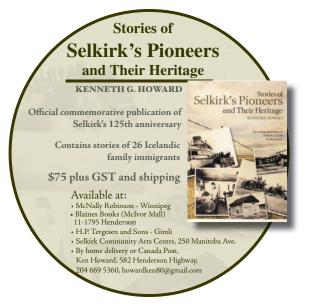

Anyone wanting to drop off a donation in-person can do so at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at 1174 River Road.

If anyone is interested in helping with the drive they can contact Anderson at 204-297-4144.

Local legion treats area veterans to special feast

By Austin Grabish

Twenty-five veterans were treated to a roast beef dinner served with all the trimmings at the Selkirk Royal Canadian Legion's annual veterans' dinner, and memories from the night are sure to be cherished as the number of living veterans continues to dwindle.

The annual dinner, which took place on June 5, is an opportunity for aging veterans to come out and socialize with one another.

"Get together and reminisce over old times," Royal Canadian Legion-Selkirk Branch 42 president Lorne Thorvaldson said.

Veterans as old as 94 came out to the dinner and indulged in a roast beef plate accompanied by seasoned carrots and mashed potatoes.

"We just do this every year to honour our veterans,"Thorvaldson said, adding the meal was free."They really enjoy it. It's something they look forward to and we're quite happy to put it on for them."

The number of veterans who have been coming out to the annual dinner and other events at the legion has been on a steep decline in recent years due mainly to age.

"It's been declining each year,"Thorvaldson said."Our veterans are getting older."

As of last March, Veterans Affairs Canada said out of the more than one million Canadians who served in the Second World War, close to 8,800 veterans remained alive in Canada with the average age of 90.

And that number is sure to have shrunk even further over the last year. Some estimates say as many 50 veterans die per day in Canada.

Thorvaldson estimates Selkirk's legion lost up to five veterans over the past year.

The missing seats at this year's dinner were partly filled by other younger war veterans in their mid 40's, Thorvaldson said.

Father drops bullying lawsuit against Evergreen School Division

By Austin Grabish

A disgruntled father has dropped a lawsuit against the Evergreen School Division after alleging school officials ignored years of bullying and harassment his teenage son endured at two Gimli schools, the Record has learned.

Court records show the March statement of claim, which was seeking an undisclosed amount of damages from the school division, was dropped on May 4.

The lawsuit made headlines earlier this year after the father alleged school administrators "made little effort" to address years of harassment and bullying his now 16-year-old son endured during his time at two Gimli schools.

The Record is not naming the father to protect the teenager's identity. He now attends class at another school in the Interlake.

Supt. Paul Cuthbert, three school administrators, as well as the school division, and its board of trustees were all named in the lawsuit.

The suit is in relation to alleged bullying that began in 2011 at the Dr. George Johnson Middle School in Gimli as well as the town's high school.

The lawsuit stated the abuse against the boy happened in class and online and was "deleterious" to the boy's learning.

"He was subjected to a renewed pattern of harassment, which included verbal assaults, damage to his property, and physical violence," according to court documents.

The lawsuit claimed despite numerous complaints made to school administrators, the abuse continued, became more frequent, more harassing, and escalated in violence.

At one point, RCMP became involved in the case, and the boy's father alleged school administrators failed to co-operate with Mounties, and even interfered with the investigation.

It was also alleged the former principal of Gimli High School told the boy's parents he should "work it out." "Moreover insinuations and statements attributed fault and responsibility to (the boy)," the lawsuit said.

Evergreen staffers were accused of breaching their duty to prevent bullying from happening under the Public Schools Act as well as the Safe Schools Charter.

A week after the suit was filed, a Riverton family told Winnipeg radio station CJOB they were contemplating their own lawsuit against the division over treatment their autistic boy received.

No statement of defence from the school division was ever filed with the court and none of the allegations were proven.

The school staffers and the division are still presumed innocent.

> NEIGHBOUR SAYS 2013 EXPLOSION 'ROCKED MY WORLD,' FROM PG. 1

"There was a black ring around the mailbox, it took out the garage window, and there was a black scarring on the brick on the corner," Kane said.

Iris and Guido lived together in the home before filing for divorce in 2004 and have been part of a decade-long legal battle.

News of Amsel's arrest shocked Kane who described the man as a hard worker.

"I thought it can't be," Kane said.

Kane added he always wondered why he never heard anything about the 2013 explosion from police even after an RCMP bomb squad visited the home.

"This incident with (the) lawyer in the city, that's horrendous, that should never have happened, but the RCMP were here two years ago," he said.

Several residents that spoke to the Record on Monday evening said they had never heard of any bombing on their street.

Kane said since the home is located around a bend with lots of trees he's not surprised neighbours didn't know about the late-night explosion.

"Everyone tries to keep everything quiet around here they don't want to complain about the other neighbours ... but I'll tell you it rocked my world on that day."

RCMP said they couldn't comment on why the explosion was never made public in order to "protect the integrity" of their ongoing investigations.

More information was expected to be released after press time on Tuesday.

Thousands of seniors taking advantage of school tax rebate

Staff

Nearly 34,000 Manitoba seniors have applied for a rebate to reduce their school taxes following the doubling of the Seniors' School Tax Rebate.

"This rebate saves seniors money and makes it more affordable for older Manitobans to stay in their family homes," Finance Minister Greg Dewar announced Monday.

Payments will begin being processed after the property tax filing due date, Dewar said adding processing of payments will begin after the property tax due date. For properties with a June 30 property tax due date, such as Winnipeg, Brandon, Headingley and Dunnottar, payments will be delivered by direct deposit and cheque starting Monday, he said.

In March 2015, the Manitoba government doubled the Seniors' School Tax Rebate to $470 from $235. The maximum rebate of $470 is available in 2015, in addition to the basic $700 Education Property Tax Credit and the income-tested $400 Senior's Education Property Tax Credit top-up.

Seniors can apply for the rebate when they receive their property tax statement from their local municipality. Some municipalities will be sending out property tax statements over the summer into fall. To qualify for the 2015 tax rebate, seniors must:

• own or occupy and live in a home that is their principal residence,

• be liable for the school taxes on that residence,

• be at least 65 years of age by the end of 2015, and

• have school taxes not already fully covered by the basic Education Property Tax Credit.

There are an estimated 80,000 homes owned by seniors in Manitoba. Approximately 17,000 senior homeowners already have their school taxes fully covered by the Manitoba government's basic Education Property Tax Credit and the 2014 Seniors' School Tax Rebate.

Applications are available online by visiting manitoba.ca/seniorsrebate or by calling 204-945-7555 in Winnipeg or at 1-855-893-8266.

Tea party helps bring heritage site back to life

By Austin Grabish

A Victorian style garden party drew some 70 attendees to Stuart House on Eveline Street in Selkirk on Sunday afternoon.

The war in Europe, women wanting the right to vote, and various political scandals all made for some good discussion during the 1915 themed party aimed at raising funds for Stuart House repairs.

People of all ages came out for tea and crumpet-like biscuits, many showing up outfitted from head to toe in costumes from the First World War era.

Red River North Regional Heritage Group chair Rob Sarginson organized the event and said it was a smashing success.

"It's a big success because people are interested in their heritage and this is one way they can touch the events of 100 years ago and be kind of tickled by the prospect," Sarginson said.

He said he was very pleased with the large turnout as well as everyone who dressed up and acted as local dignitaries from that time for the event.

"These ladies look magnificent," Sarginson said when pointing to women dressed in late Victorian era clothing.

Sarginson himself dressed as Kildonan MLA and Finance Minister John W. Montague for the party.

Dozens of attendees took a trip back in time during a Victorian style garden tea party and fundraiser for Stuart House held at local the heritage site on Sunday afternoon.

The Tory faced sharp criticism from some attendees who were fuming over cost overruns with the recently built Manitoba legislature.

Selkirk's MP George Bradbury was also the subject of criticism from a tough crowd made up of mostly women.

At one point during the party Mrs. Bennedictson, a leader in the women's rights movement demanding the right to vote, halted the MP's speech. But it seemed neither Bradbury or Montague cared much for her call for equality – she was dismissed because of her gender.

Sarginson later put down the actor's cap and explained the historical significance of Stuart House.

He said the former mansion is a Selkirk treasure that should be restored. James Stuart, the manager of the former Selkirk Electric Light Company.

mer Selkirk Electric Light Company, built the home in 1904. Stuart was hailed as one of Selkirk's key pioneers at the party.

"It was James Stuart who turned the light on in Selkirk," Sarginson said.

Selkirk resident Ian Mackay was dressed as a valet and was tipping his hat to drivers passing by the house.

The 19-year-old said seeing vandals destroy the home's exterior was concerning so he and his father started going to heritage group meetings hoping something could be done to bring the mansion back to life.

"We'd kind of been pushing for something to be done at the house here," Mackay said.

Maureen Deboer dressed up and handed out tea on fancy China dishware. She is a descendent of Stuart and has fond memories at the family home, which vandals have tarnished in recent years.

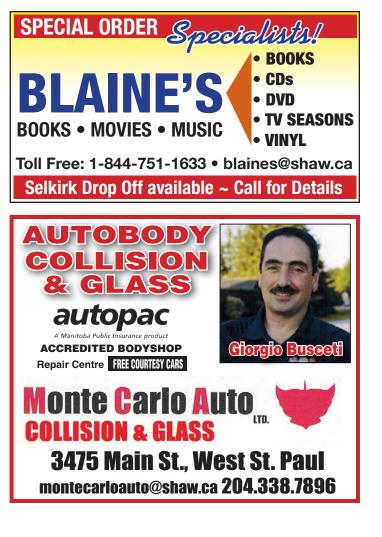

"It's been awful," Deboer said. "I always regret that we never kept it in the family, but it just wasn't possible at the time."

She said the home left her family after her grandfather died because his wife couldn't afford to live in it alone.

The home would later become a rental property, then derelict and purchased by the city.

The building is now recognized as a heritage site, but is in desperate need of costly repairs and currently sits with boarded-up windows.

A growing appreciation for wildflowers, native grasses

Prairie Originals marks 25th anniversary with public information tours

By Lindsey Enns

Some may be surprised to see no greenhouse when they pull up to Prairie Originals, but since all of their wildflowers and native grasses are built to bare Manitoba's tough climate conditions, they don't need one.

The plant shop, located along Bunns Road in Selkirk, is celebrating it's 25th anniversary this year by hosting various public information tours on the 25th day of each month this summer.

Their next tour on Saturday, July 25, will be dedicated to birds and bugs in the garden where gardeners can learn about which bugs are good and which ones they should watch out for. For more information about the tours, visit the Prairie Originals Facebook page.

"We're encouraging people to come out and learn about native plants and how to use them and what the benefits of them are," Prairie Originals manager Kelly Leask said, adding prairie plants are low maintenance and can survive Manitoba's harsh winters. "Native plants are basically designed by nature to survive in our climate."

The plants also help support various types of species including monarch butterflies.

"I've seen so many more bugs around, and they're good bugs so it's very exciting to see that," she said. "When we go for a walk in the stock beds there's always frogs hopping around ... and hummingbirds

East Beaches celebrates Grand Marais Heritage Wing opening

By Laura Tutlies

It was standing room only when the Grand Marias Heritage Wing inside Grand Marais Community Central in East Beaches celebrated their grand opening on July 3.

Louise Avery, chair of the Grand Marais heritage group, welcomed local and area dignitaries along with representatives from sponsors of and contributors to the Heritage Wing of Grand Marais. Members of the Grand Marais group are also affiliated with the RM of St Clements Heritage Committee.

Avery expressed the indebtedness of the group to Fraser Stewart of the St. Clements Committee who mentored the team for the nearly three years it has taken to raise funds and realize the vision of the original band of creators.

Responsible for the finished product is Sherry Dangerfield of S Dangerfield Interpretive Planning. One member of the team said,"without the dedication, tenacity, and professional expertise of Dangerfield, the project would never have come so far so fast or so well."

Dangerfield collected and managed a large number of contractors and visual professionals to create the interactive displays within the museum. The entire creation is state-of-the-art and the committee in charge will continue to add to the current displays with more stories, pictures and selected artifacts as time goes on.

There are several notable aspects to the museum. At the entrance is the aquarium featuring aspects of Lake Winnipeg and an interactive history and information station that is specific to the lake. Within the small space that is the Heritage Wing are vignettes and displays of Pioneers, their Industry and livelihood along with their stories, a replica of the Moonlight Express, the CN train that first brought campers and day-trippers to Grand Beach and Victoria Beach, a memory wall, a fabulous little movie theatre called Harry's Hideout which is a mock-up of an original that was the brain child of Harry Blake-Knox, and as you leave you can send a postcard from the beach at an interactive postcard station. The Heritage Wing will be open until October and will reopen again in the spring of 2016.

RCMP remind motorcycle drivers to stay safe on the road

Staff

With summer finally here, RCMP are reminding motorists to keep an eye out and share the roads with all types of vehicles, including motorcycles.

While riding a motorcycle can be one of the most exhilarating ways to travel, the increased risks can't be ignored.

There are approximately four deaths per year in Manitoba involving a collision with a motorcycle. These collisions happen between late April and mid-September, and occur most frequently at intersections during the day.

Over the past five years, speed has been cited as a major contributing factor in more than half the fatalities involving motorcycles. In a collision, motorcyclists have no protection other than their safety equipment. Unfortunately the reality is that in multi-vehicle collisions involving motorcycles, the motorcyclist almost always loses.

The RCMP wants everyone to be safe on the road and advise that motorcyclists can enhance their own safety even before starting their engines. Before you ride, conduct a safety check:

• Is your motorcycle ready for the road?

• Does it have enough fuel for your trip?

• Are all the lights, signals and brakes in good running order?

• Is your safety equipment, such as helmet, gloves, boots and jacket, in good condition?

Drive sober, focus on the road, be vigilant, expect the unexpected and abide by the speed limit.

Smoke before the storm: Lake Manitoba squall flips catamaran

By Patricia Barrett

With little warning, apart from a few distant rumbles of thunder, a violent storm hit Laurentia Beach Saturday afternoon and tossed a catamaran and its sailor under the waves about a half mile (.8 kilometres) from shore.

Two cottagers had been out for a beachside stroll, but ran for cover when the rain came bucketing down. They said they saw a red-hulled catamaran with brightly coloured sails dashed down into the water.

"The wind was too strong," said Grant Link, one of the cottagers who witnessed the incident, "and he flipped." Link's family has owned a cottage at Laurentia Beach for about 44 years.

In a matter of seconds, the tempest from the southwest shrouded the lake, and the boat disappeared from sight. Concerned for the fate of the sailor, Link's friend called 911 while he got out his binoculars and trained them on the spot where the boat capsized.

After several minutes of intense wind and rain, and hail the size of almonds, the squall passed and visibility on the lake improved somewhat.

Link said he saw a motorboat carrying three passengers quite some distance south of the catamaran. It looked as though it was heading towards the downed boat.

By that time, the pilot could be seen in the water clinging to the catamaran. Heavy smoke from forest fires in northwestern Manitoba and Saskatchewan hovered over the lake all weekend, making it virtually impossible for boaters to anticipate (by sight and smell) an approaching storm. Manitoba has imposed a fire ban, according to a July 3 update from Manitoba Conservation.

The beached catamaran after the storm July 4.

One of Link's neighbours said she didn't see the catamaran capsize, but she saw it lying in the water before the storm intensified.

"A wall of water came through," said the cottager, who preferred not to give her name, "and we lost sight of it." She said when the rain let up, she and her husband saw people walking along a spit at the south end of the bay. They waded into the lake and walked in the direction of the capsized boat.

The motorboat beat them to it.

Tristan Rakowski, whose family has a cottage at Laurentia Beach, said he and his family left Twin Lakes Beach when they heard the first thunderclap. Ten minutes later, they were whipped by rain, "bothered" by lightning and battling waves a metre and a half high. As they approached the south end of Laurentia, they saw the overturned catamaran and headed to the rescue.

"He was sitting on the pontoon, looking a little discouraged," said Rakowski, who is vice president of Rakowski Cartage & Wrecking, a Winnipeg-based company that demolishes buildings across the country and recycles the materials.

Rakowski said they asked the man whether he was hurt and offered to help him get the vessel upright. He tried to swing the mast into the wind. From shore, Link said he could see the man standing on one pontoon, attempting to right the catamaran.

A few seconds before St. Laurent's volunteer firefighters and first aid responders arrived at the main public beach, which is cordoned off from the shoreline by geotubes (textile sleeves filled with sand) and massive sandbags used for flood control, the catamaran was buoyant.

It looked as though the man was unharmed, but St. Laurent's deputy fire chief wasn't taking any chances. He sent two volunteers into the lake.

"We don't have a boat to effect a rescue," said Roger Leclerc, "but we have the jurisdiction to commandeer one from a cottager."

The two volunteers stripped off protective gear and heavy boots and waded into the water. Laurentia Beach has long stretches of relatively shallow water close to shore. Although the flood of 2011, which devastated cottages in St. Laurent and Twin Lakes Beach, has raised the level of the lake and stolen beachfront, it's still possible to walk out about a kilometre and a half – with the water at neck level – before the lakebed takes a serious dip.

Leclerc said if the fire department had to grab a cottager's boat, it would reimburse the owner."It's like renting a boat," he said.

And depending on how the situation unfolded, Leclerc said the fire department would call for backup from the Lundar RCMP detachment, which has a rescue boat.

In chest-deep water, the two firefighters waved the man ashore, but he apparently did not see them. He landed at the south end of Laurentia Beach, close to the spit.

"I went down, but I was okay," said the man, who was surrounded by several people. He was removing the jib, which looked as though it had suffered tearing. He did not wish to comment any further or provide his name. Leclerc said the fire chief went to speak with him to assess his condition.

Within an hour of the storm, there was barely a ripple on the water. But it was hard to tell what the clouds were getting up to behind the smoke.

Annual Gimli Model Fest set to take flight

Submitted by Randy Bohemier

It had a humble beginning, just an idea, actually. Could a few remote control model enthusiasts be interested in putting on a model airplane display? The grass could be cut on a small field off Highway 231 for the purpose of a runway and have some parking for spectators. This was the catalyst for the formation of the Interlake Radio Control Model Club. Now numbering just under 30 members, this club facilitates one of Canada's premier Model R.C. Air Shows. The Model Club had to move to its new location in its fifth year as the Model Air Show out grew the small field. Now located about one and a half miles west of Highway 8 on Minerva Road, it now boasts to be the premier model airfield in the province. With its large runways measuring 600' x 600', it is capable of handling all manner of winged aircraft including model jets running on kerosine fuel. Some aircraft measure in at 1/4 scale of the planes they duplicate. This year's show will showcase all manner of flight, warbirds, aerobatic, drones, free flight, jets and much more.

The pilots who put the air show on come from across Canada and the United States. They are all volunteers and are here to entertain only.

This Air Show is for fun and is not a competition and no prize money or trophies are given out. That said, bragging rights will be earned. Who can go faster, lower, higher, all help to shape the upcoming event. Arriving in motor homes, fifth wheels, campers and tents, some will be arriving a week in advance to take advantage of the field and what Gimli has to offer. Always a fun time, a small hamlet will take shape. Pilots will be testing and tuning their aircraft for the upcoming show.

The first official day of the Gimli Model Fest is Friday, Aug. 14, free admission to the general public all day. Pilots will have no set routine and will just fly whenever the fancy strikes. Saturday becomes more serious with gates opening at 10 a.m. Planes will be set out for display, practice will be taking place for the actual air show to be held on Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m. Admission on Saturday and Sunday is $5 for adults, while children 12 and under are free. Gates open at 10 a.m.

As in past years, the Kiwanis will be on hand to man the food concessions, serving hotdogs, hamburgers, chips etc.

As always, pilots will be walking around, mingling with the crowd, always happy to talk about their sport. This is a family event with a scheduled candy drop for the kids which is always a hit.

This is an action-filled high speed event that is sure to please. We are located just off Highway 8 down Minerva Road. Don't forget to mark this date on your calendar: Air Show, Sunday Aug. 16, 1-3 p.m. Bring your own lawn chairs and blankets to set up in the spectator viewing area. Free parking is available. Shannon Wales, who also golfs out of Selkirk, sat in 21st place after an opening round 96.

At the Men's Mid-Amateur Championship, also being held at St. Boniface, Breezy Bend's Justin McDonald led after the first round after firing an even par 72.

That was a stroke ahead of Jay Doyle and two in front of Matlock's Garth Collings and Mike Tibbs. Both Collings and Tibbs shot 74s.

The 54-hole women's and men's events wrapped up Wednesday.

Selkirk FC to host Scotia United

By Brian Bowman

After a 10-day break, Selkirk FC will be back on the pitch tonight against Scotia United at the Selkirk Rec Complex.

Selkirk (2-5-1) is in dire need of a win at home against Scotia United (3-0-4). Selkirk FC was in seventh place in the nine-team Manitoba Major Soccer League's 1st Division heading into this week's schedule of games.

In its last game on June 28, Selkirk FC was edged 2-1 Pescara. Chris Szukiewicz scored Selkirk's lone goal while Mandela Zidane and Joshua Ristau replied for the winners.

Goals have been hard to come by for Selkirk FC this season, with just 10 goals scored through their first eight games.

Thursday's game will be the final one of a six-game homestand for Selkirk FC. After that, Selkirk will play just one home game in its final seven matchups of the regular season.

In 4th Division action, the Tri-S Strike Force saw their record drop to 3-6 after a 3-2 home loss to IPAC Ukraine last Sunday at the Selkirk Rec Complex.

Tri-S, now in ninth place in the 10team league, will be back on its home pitch tonight when they host Winnipeg FC at the Rec Complex. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Bantam Pirates red-hot in recent weeks

By Brian Bowman

The North Winnipeg Pirates Bantam "AAA" baseball team may have started their season slow, but they have been red-hot in recent weeks.

North Winnipeg had won 11 of its past 14 games heading into this past Sunday's doubleheader with the Red River Valley Pioneers. The Pirates were fresh off sweeping the St. James A's by scores of 5-3 and 9-8 on Canada Day.

"That was a real big day for us because of the fact, they were ahead of us (in the standings) and beating us," said Pirates' head coach Dave Nychyk, who lives in St. Andrews. "We were off playing 11 games in 14 days, so we should have been tired coming in and they hadn't played that much baseball.

"We ended up taking two from them, so we had a pretty good day. I was pretty proud of them."

The Pirates also reached the finals of a Brandon tournament just two weeks go.

"We had a real disappointing start but lately we've been getting it going," Nychyk said, noting the Pirates will finish the regular season in third place. "We're starting to play the way we were supposed to be (playing) at the start of the year."

Spontside > OUTSIDE > OUTSIDE > OUTSIDE DOWN

The Pirates' pitching has been real good this season and their depth on the mound has helped the club in a huge way.

"We have a lot of guys that can throw strikes off the mound with a little bit of velocity and authority," Nychyk explained.

The Pirates also have plenty of experience playing at the provincial and western Canadian level. That should help them come playoff time in a very competitive Bantam league.

"They know how to get it done," Nychyk said confidently. "It's just whether they want to get it done. But other teams have improved. We've seen some good competition improve from where they were in PeeWee. We have some work to do – it's a wide open ball game right now."

North Winnipeg's roster is split evenly with first-year Bantam players and returning ones.

"We're pretty young compared to the top teams in the province," Nychyk explained. "Bantam is run by your second-year players, but our first-year Bantams have been to the western Canadians last year and a lot of our Bantams have been to westerns twice.

"They're a good group of kids, so they're not your regular first-year Bantams, that's for sure."

The Pirates' mental game has also been good this season, said Nychyk. Part of that could be attributed to their experience of playing in several big games the last couple of seasons.

"Our reaction after we make a mistake has been real improved," Nychyk said. "In baseball, you're going to make your mistakes. It's what we do after those mistakes that has really improved. We're starting to pick each other up if something goes wrong. We're making big plays after a mistake to get ourselves out of a bind."

This year's edition of the Bantam Pirates is loaded with local talent. Six of the 12 players on the Pirates' roster reside in either West St. Paul or the Tri-S area.

Liam Allen, Kevin Burnett, Brittney Langlais, Owen Nychyk, Nathan Slaby and Christian Ingram are the local players on the Pirates.

"Those kids are all major contributors on our team," Nychyk said. "(Our success) doesn't happen without those six kids. We only have 12 on our roster, so everybody has to be contributing.

"Different kids have different roles on our team, but the (local players) have always been a mainstay and do a good job with this club."

Tri-S women kickin' the competition

By Brian Bowman

The Tri-S women's soccer program elected to have a pair of teams this season – and so far both have been very successful.

The longtime Tri-S United team had a 5-2-2 record heading into this past Tuesday's road game with the California Raisins at the Winnipeg Soccer Complex.

After losing its first two Winnipeg Women's Soccer League Division 2 games of the season, Tri-S is now undefeated in its past seven games.

"It's such a small team but I like how they have come together," said United head coach Dennis Tucker. "Most of the teams have set pieces with certain forwards or defencemen or midfielders, but not this year (with the United). Because it's such a small team and I never know what I'm going to get, I have forwards playing defence and defence playing forward. I think they've learned a lot."

Of the 22 goals scored by Tri-S so far, Jessica Lister leads the team with seven. Sarah Mansell was second on the club in scoring with six goals through eight games.

"Jessica has been playing with the Red River team and I think she has more confidence since playing with them," Tucker noted. "They're both centre midfielders, and one plays a little more defensive than the other, but they trade off all of the time in terms of attacking and defending." Tri-S' other senior women's team, the Strikers, had a 4-1 record in Division 5 going into last Sunday's matchup with the Hanover Haze. Tri-S had scored 15 goals through its first five games while giving up just five.

"They're pretty good," Tucker said. "They're not a bad team. I have a mixture of some really talented girls and then I have some girls that have never played before."

Tucker, who coaches both teams, said it has been a good start to the season for the two Tri-S clubs. Getting enough players to come out for games on a regular basis has been a bit of a problem, however.

"I split them (into) two teams because I was getting so many players," said Tucker last Friday afternoon. "Now, I have two small teams."

Tucker said the smaller rosters have, at times, posed a challenge for the two teams. When players get hurt, or maybe have other commitments on a particular night, it can force the Tri-S teams to play shorthanded.

"I can only call up players 18 times throughout the year and I've already called up eight or nine," he noted." I've played two games now with only 10 players...and you would like to have at least two players on the bench."

Any individuals interested in playing women's soccer this season with a Tri-S team can contact Tucker by email at tuck4@hotmail.com

IN MEMORIAM

July 12, 2013 Sometimes you will never know the value of a moment until it becomes a memory.

~ Dr. Seuss The moment that you left me, My heart was split in two; One side was filled with memories, The other side died with you. I often lav awake at night. When the world is fast asleep; And take a walk down memory lane, With tears upon my cheek. Remembering you is easy, I do it every day; But missing you is a heartache, That never goes away. I hold you tightly within my heart, And there you will remain; You see life has gone on without you, But it will never be the same. It's been a long day without you my friend, I'll tell you all about it when I see you again. -Missing you, Mom, Dad, Nicole, Dalyce and Wes
