Red Road Clothing creator looks to inspire Indigenous youth

By Justin Luschinski

A Manitoba clothing company is combining Indigenous artistic spirit with grassroots activism.

Crowds of people huddled around Red Road Clothing's booth at the Aboriginal Head Start's annual Pie and Holiday Market Craft Show at the Selkirk Friendship Centre last Saturday afternoon. The company is family owned, and the designs are based on real stories and events, which aim to inspire Indigenous people to be proud of their heritage.

Crissy Slater, the artist and co-owner behind Red Road Clothing, said she wants her work to instill a sense of pride in Indigenous youth.

"I remember when a mother bought her daughter one of our sweaters. Her daughter was a young Indigenous woman, and she wore that sweater every day for five months, until it was shredding. I've been told so many times, our designs make them proud" Slater said. "It's important for us to normalize being Indigenous, because 15 years ago, people were trying to hide their Indigenousness."

Slater, who grew up on Peguis First Nation and now lives in Winnipeg, said she started the company earlier this year, and initially she was hoping to make around $2,000. But her T-shirts and hoodies, which she then sold through Facebook, sold out in a month, generating $20,000 in sales.

She said the response has been overwhelming and she now works full time on Red Road Clothing.

Red Road Clothing has several designs available now. One honours missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, a few are based on Indigenous regalia, and one is based on a berry fast her daughter embarked on.

Slater said Red Road Clothing supports grassroots Indigenous initiatives, and she employs Indigenous youth whenever she can.

"When we do our photo shoots, we bring in Indigenous women to be models, we employ Indigenous staff whenever we can, and we donate money to causes we believe in. It's incredible, because they feel so proud, so happy," Slater said. "We've even had young men approach us, saying they want designs, they want to model, they want to be a part of this. That really surprised me. So now we've got some models lined up for something we haven't even organized yet."

Slather's daughter, Ariel Spence, embarked on a coming of age ceremony when she turned 12-years-old. She fasted from berries for a whole year, and did not receive any new gifts, because as a woman, she had to learn to sacrifice things to take care of her future children. This became the basis for Slater's first design.

Slater said they're focused on creating their next clothing series, which will honour Indigenous men.

Dog program breathes new life into Hearthstone Community Group

By Lindsey Enns

A new dog program is helping inspire and motivate local youth and adults at Hearthstone Community Group.

The Gentle Pets program is designed to help individuals living with cognitive disabilities develop skills to care and foster a love for animals while strengthening their social skills and enhancing community participation.

Although the program has only been up and running for a few weeks, Kristen Lobay says she's already noticing some big changes in the individuals they work with.

"The energy and the dynamics have totally changed and people are smiling who didn't smile before. People are asking questions where they didn't before," said Lobay, who is the program developer and integrated programs and social enterprise manager at Hearthstone Community Group. "They're motivated, they're eager to participate, it's a highlight of their day.

"There's a new inspired motivation to communicate so that's super exciting." Participants say they are also enjoying the new program.

"I like being in the dog centre because I like to play with the dogs and give them treats," said Nicole.

"I like the dog program because the dogs are so friendly," added Duke."I like to be in there with them and take them for walks too."

Gentle Pets offers a Wuf'N Stay Dog Program, where local dogs who have passed a behaviour assessment test among other things can spend the day, a Self-Serve Wash Station where you can wash your pet, as well as a store where treats and other products can be purchased. They also offer a fenced in off-leash outdoor dog park area.

The approximately 24 individuals who participate in the program on a daily basis are also gaining valuable work experience.

"The dog program benefits our individuals," said staff member Megan

Sargent. "It helps them learn new skills such as baking dog treats, interacting with dogs, cleaning, working with money, organizational skills, and communication skills."

Lobay says Gentle Pets currently runs on community support and volunteers are welcome to join.

"The benefit to this program is they can develop new social skills," she said. "Now people are coming out of their shell so to speak and are more open to learn those social communication skills."

Gentle Pets, located at 209 Superior Ave. in Selkirk, will be hosting a grand opening on Thursday, Nov. 15 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. with a special ribbon cutting at 1:30 p.m.

Santa Parade of Lights ready to light up Selkirk on Nov. 16

By Justin Luschinski

The Santa Parade of Lights is gearing up to brighten up downtown Selkirk.

This year's parade will take place on Friday, Nov. 16 starting at 7 p.m. The parade will start at Heap Ave. and continue up Eveline St., ending at Superior Ave.

The volunteer-run event is entering its 16th year and it aims to bring a little Christmas cheer to Selkirk and area community members.

Candace Skrypnyk-Loutit, one of the organizers, said it's an incredible amount of work. But seeing how the children react makes it all worth it.

"It's very stressful, but it's very rewarding at the end," Candace said. "It's great to see so many people come out and enjoy the event."

Candace said she wants the parade to inspire children, just like it inspired her as a kid.

"Years ago, I remember watching the parade as a little girl. At the time, they only had three floats. That's it. Last year, we had around 50 floats, maybe more," she said. "I want to make sure that everyone comes out to enjoy the parade.

"And that everyone has a safe and happy time."

The entry deadline for parade floats is on Nov. 14. The entry fee is $25. For more information, email Candace at candykano@hotmail.com, or call 204-430-9788.

'You can accomplish great things when you work together'

Local mayors ready to work together for the region

By Lindsey Enns

Two new and two newly re-elected mayors say they are ready to work together for the betterment of the region.

Selkirk Mayor Larry Johannson said following the municipal election on Oct. 24 that this marks"a new chapter and a new beginning" for the region.

"When we apply for granting ... we have to think regional," Johannson said."Gone are the days where we apply for granting and it's just for your entity."

Johannson along with newly reelected St. Clements Mayor Debbie Fiebelkorn as well as new St. Andrews Mayor Joy Sul and West St. Paul Mayor Cheryl Christian met at the Selkirk Waterfront on Oct. 25, the day after the municipal election, to speak with media.

"I'm really very proud to be working with these mayors in our region. It's exciting," Christian said with a smile.

Sul added it's important for the four communities to work together when it comes to promoting tourism throughout the region, attracting film projects as well as when it comes to wastewater management.

"I'm proud to be working with the new mayors and I think working together, that's how you can accomplish great things when you work together."

This municipal election was also a big win for women across Manitoba.

Along with Sul and Christian, Thompson also elected Colleen Smook, its first female mayor, and Teulon elected Debbie Kozyra. Tiffany Fell was also elected in the RM of Springfield and East St. Paul Mayor Shelley Hart was re-elected by acclamation.

During elections this year, 21 women were elected as heads of council or mayors out of 137 municipalities. However, according to data complied by CBC News, women only occupy 211 elected positions in Manitoba municipalities, or 21 per cent of total seats, compared to 798 positions held by men (79 per cent of seats).

Fiebelkorn said although times are changing, a lot of the rural councils are still made up of the "old boy's club." "You have to keep your head up.You have an important contribution to can't let them get to you.You can't let make." them intimidate you," she said.

Although more women stepped up to run in this year's elections, Christian said"we need more women at the table representing our residents."

"We need to have more women in these positions," Christian said. "Everybody needs to have a voice in our community, women

Selkirk sisters ready to give back during 24 Hour Giving Challenge

Submitted

Most months of the year are synonymous with something – June is the start of summer, September sends the kids back to school and October brings out the trickers and treaters.

We all know that December is the season of giving, but Selkirk sisters Erna Iwanoczko and Audrey Zieroth like to get the giving underway a bit early, so they've made November the official kick off to the Christmas season.

Every November for the past four years the sisters have donated to the Selkirk and District Community Foundation through Endow Manitoba's 24 Hour Giving Challenge and they plan to do it again this year on Nov. 17.

Both say they give in memory of their parents, Ernie and Myrtle Zieroth, and Erna's son, Dale Iwanoczko, a doctor and celebrated volleyball player who passed away in September 1998.

"I always give in November because it's the start of Christmas. I give in memory of my parents and my nephew. I always think that's the start of Christmas, and it's such a good cause," Audrey said.

Erna agreed.

"I do the same, I do it in memory of our parents and of Dale. Dale was always one that was community minded in Selkirk, so it's a perfect chance to remember him at Christmas. He would be happy because the money's all going back into the community. That would be a big thing in his eyes," she said.

This is the fifth year for the 24 Hour

Audrey Zieroth and Erna Iwanoczko are getting ready for giving season and the 24-Hour Giving Challenge.

Giving Challenge, where community foundations across the province encourage people to donate to their Community Fund, with every $5 donation topped up by $2, half from the Winnipeg Foundation and half from the Province of Manitoba, to a maximum of $2,000 each.

Gord Henrikson, Chair of the SDCF, said any time is a good time to donate to the foundation, but if you can only donate once, the 24 Hour Giving Challenge is the day to do it.

"The fact that there's a top up for donating during that 24 hour period makes it really important for us and for the community," Henrikson said.

In 2014, SDCF received $27,688 in on-line donations during the 24 Hour Challenge and in 2015 the community bested that by giving $63,495, which included $25,000 from the RM of St. Andrews. In 2016, SDCF brought in $39,855 to make it the second highest in the province and last year the total was $62,005 to again sit in second place.

Online donations to the Community Fund received during the 24 hours of Nov. 17 will count as part of the challenge, so you can make your donation from home computer, on your phone, laptop or tablet. You just go to endowmanitoba.ca and look for the Selkirk and District Community Foundation on the map or in the list of foundations. Simply click 'Make an On-Line Gift Now' and use your credit card.

If you prefer a face-to-face transaction, you can come to the Gaynor Family Regional Library on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the fine folks from SDCF will be on hand with a support team to make the donation with you, while you enjoy some coffee and dainties.

Stricter penalties for distracted driving now in effect across Manitoba

Submitted

Manitobans are reminded that stricter penalties for distracted driving came into force on Nov. 1.

"The growing threat of distracted driving has led our government to take important action," said Infrastructure Minister Ron Schuler. "Our government is taking serious measures because people are not putting their cellphones down and are engaging in other distracted behaviours while driving."

"Our government is determined to reduce the growing threat posed by distracted driving because we are focused on keeping Manitobans safe," added Crown Services Colleen Mayer."By using public education, legislation and enforcement, we are working together with Manitoba Public Insurance to change the public perception and make distracted driving as socially unacceptable as impaired driving."

Drivers will be subject to a threeday roadside licence suspension for the first time a driver is caught using a cellphone or other hand-operated electronic device and a seven-day suspension for a subsequent occurrence within 10 years. Suspended drivers will be required to immediately surrender their driver's licence at roadside. As part of the changes for roadside licence suspensions, Manitoba Public Insurance (MPI) will collect a $50 licence reinstatement fee on behalf of the provincial government.

Officers charging a driver with careless driving will immediately notify MPI to review the driver's record to determine if further penalties may be required.

"Stricter penalties are in line with impaired driving because the consequences are just as serious. Any activity that takes a driver's attention away from the road is dangerous," Schuler added. "In 2017, 30 people lost their lives and 184 people were seriously hurt. That is unacceptable."

Further penalties have also taken effect with fines for using a hand-operated electronic device while driving increasing to $672 from $203 and demerits for careless driving increasing to five points from two for each infraction.

The use of a hand-operated electronic device while driving reduces awareness and increases the risk of collision by nearly four times, said Schuler.

for public input where everyone will be allowed to speak," she said. "An open door policy will be implemented to end closed door meetings.

"The minutes will be clear for all to understand and tape recording of meetings is a must."

Sul added one of the first orders of business will be a complete review of the council indemnities bylaw and full transparency of council expenses. Council will also be re-looking into the community's controversial wastewater project.

"Your vote was your voice and the outcome of the election was very clear and we are all now, very accountable to you and will work for you."

Winnipeg Beach council re-examines fireworks bylaw

By Roger Newman

Winnipeg Beach Council may modify its proposed bylaw banning residents from setting off fireworks in town.

Mayor Tony Pimentel says the bylaw, which received first and second readings at the October council meetings may be amended to permit residential fireworks on three days of the year.

"These days would be Victoria Day, Canada Day and New Year's Eve," said Pimentel. Council's protective services committe will meet this week to discuss the idea of revising the fireworks bylaw for the three special days. The bylaw will come back for third and final reading at council's next publc meeting scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 21 at 6 p.m in the town council chambers.

Pimentel said the protective services committee is also discussing whether honey beekeeping should be permitted in town. Council members decided to do some research after receiving a complaint about a beekeeper operating in a residental community where agricultural activities are not allowed.

Council will decide between continuing the bee ban or permitting beekeepers to thrive with hives if they apply for a conditional use permit.

That too could come up at the next public council meeting.

Coolest Ice Shack Contest coming up

get RED RIVER > CHALET BEACH > LAKE WINNIPEG

Hi friends, thanks for stopping in. Well, winter's coming! Everywhere, ice has been covering small bodies of water in the morning lately. Now, we look to "first ice" on our waterways. Come December hopefully we'll venture out onto our frozen creeks, rivers and lakes to our favorite fishing spots. For some of our commercial fisher brothers and sisters, they'll be thinking of getting their bombardiers and equipment ready. It's invigorating though as we set aside our boats and ready our short rods and fish finders for ice fishing.

> ARNIE WEIDL

Another sign that winter is soon upon us is the Manitoba Ice Fishing Association calling their folks together to begin their annual raffle for a portable ice shack and auger. The association and its partners are very excited about the ever growing month long "Who's Got the Coolest Ice Shack" contest. This year any shack on the ice in southern Manitoba can be considered by calling our newspapers, in addition to our scouts looking for unique shacks as entrants.

Oddly enough and quite by chance our first story this week comes from two younger guys who almost "got caught" way out on the ice off Balsam Bay last winter. It was last week when I met Winnipegers, husky, ready to please, Jean Luc Chouinard and thinner, quieter, Dustin Goderis. They told how it was easy, heading north across the ice bouncing along in Jean Luc's big white truck. A noticeable wind whistled around the truck as they rolled along, till looking back, the Balsam pier was just a black spot on the horizon. They stopped, jumped out of the truck, opened the tailgate and pulled out chairs, rods, bait and their auger. They set about drilling holes, baiting their pickerel rigs, dropping the lines into the water then sat down munching on sandwiches washing them down with warm coffee. Dressed in old snowmobile suits and shoes they sat looking out across the endless ice laced with small snow drifts. They were two happy guys. Their rods quivered downward from time to time as each in turn landed good sized pickerels but then the charm of the day fell away as early winter darkness closed in and the north wind began howling. They packed up their gear as the increasing wind-driven snow began stinging their faces. They got in the truck quickly starting the motor and turning the headlights on. Swirled, blindingly snow was all around them. Jean Luc behind the wheel could see their tire tracks had been obliterated by the blowing snow. He looked at Dustin, "You had your GPS on right? Get us back to shore," he said urgently. Dustin busied himself and soon began navigating Jean Luc. The ferocious wind drove snow across their view jostling the truck as it lumbered southward. After what seemed like ages, the rock berms of Balsam Pier thankfully loomed into view and they knew they were safe!

A few days after meeting Jean Luc and Dustin I happen to be driving by Sugar Island and saw a lady running toward two men along the Red River bank holding her fishing rod high in the air as a small pickerel dangled from her lines end."Nosey me" had to find out what was going on! I parked and strode down the long slope to the water's edge but by the time I got there the "running lady" was gone behind some willows and I stood before the men.

'Why was that lady running?" I asked the grey bearded chap. "She wanted to string that fish with ours and go back to her "special" spot, he said in a low amused voice. "Could I get your names and maybe a fishing story you might have for your fellow anglers?" I asked. "I'm Malcolm Lusty from Winnipeg Beach and this is my son Eric who lives with his wife, Adrienne, "the running lady", in Winnipeg," he offered with a smile.

"I have a little story," Malcolm went on, "I was fishing on the rock spit on the end of the Gimli pier a few days ago and caught a small sauger. It was difficult reeling it in because of the shore rocks. All of a sudden out of nowhere what looked like an otter or muskrat shot toward the fish slithering between the wet rocks and tore the fish from my hook disappearing into the water!" "I caught a master pickerel in Gimli harbor lately," Eric added as his dad ended his story. Just then feisty Adrienne came running up to us again having lost her minnow baits and interjected, "I beat you Eric! I caught a bigger master pickerel here five years ago!"

Till next week, bye for now my friends.

Second World War memories still vivid for ESP man

Submitted

Fred Jackson got his 'calling up' papers from the British Army when he turned 18.

But his war-time battles started several years before, as he, his three brothers and their parents, lived through almost daily bombings as the Germans tried to disable the ships and rail yard located a mere 100 yards from their Liverpool home.

"This one night, they started about five o'clock, and my father had gone for tobacco for his pipe, and he apparently heard them and he was looking up, he could see them far away," said Jackson from his East St. Paul home. "They were coming straight for the yards. As they got closer to dropping the bombs, he dropped on the ground and laid down, not far from our house. And he saw the bombs coming down and one went right through our living room window."

Jackson, now 94, recalls his boyhood days in Second World War England quite matter-of-factly, but when asked if he was afraid, he simply says"yeah."

His is an incredible story of life in a time that those who didn't grow up during the Great War can't begin to imagine. Jackson said the war was in its infancy, and the Germans bombed Liverpool most days, and always around 5 or 6 o'clock.

On the day the bomb went through his living room window, his neighbors on both sides were killed.

"A lot of people wouldn't go anywhere, they had nowhere to go, or it was too early, they're having their dinner, and they'd stay. Unlucky for them, a lot of them were killed," he said.

The Jacksons followed wartime protocol, and family members went to different shelters. Jackson said his mom and baby brother, who was 10 years his junior, would go to one shelter. His one brother and father would go to another and he and another brother went to a six-by-four-foot shelter with another family.

On the day his house was destroyed, he was in his shelter at another house.

"I ran to my shelter and I huddled with the mother and the father and their two children, with my other young brother."

The bomb hit the house he was in and destroyed it. The force blew the door right off the shelter, which was made of brick and had an approximately six inch thick concrete roof. The roof had been lifted and turned before landing back on top of the shelter.

"The bomb had hit dead centre. We looked out and right up to the start of the shelter the hole went down. I'll never forget it, just a hole and nothing. It killed a lot of people in our district at that time," he said.

Jackson got out of the shelter and ran to find his mother. He ran past his house, and his mind played a trick on him - he thought his house was still standing.

"I ran up the back street and as I'm passing my house I looked in, and the funny thing is, the backyard wall was still up, but the door had been blown off. As I glanced in, what I thought I saw was the backside of the house," he said. "Anyway I ran and found my mother ... I said the house I was in it's gone, they've got nowhere to live now. I told them they could come and live with us. As I'm talking to my mother, my father comes from the wreckage of our house ... My father says to me,

'you haven't got a house.'"

They moved into a second home nearby and it too was bombed. Jackson, about 16 by this time, was at a church meeting when a man burst through the doors and told them a 2,000-pound bomb had landed near his house.

"I just up and ran. And I ran and I ran. I came to the road where we lived right opposite the park and the house was gone. Oh, was I ever scared," he said. "There was nothing, nothing there."

He tried to dig through the collapsed walls and roof to get to the shelter in the basement, but he couldn't. Bombs were still falling and he began running again, eventually ending up at a nearby college, where he and hundreds of others sought refuge.

He said men, women and children lined the basement passageways that served as shelters, and he stepped over them until he found a spot to rest. He was tired, he'd had no sleep and his world had been destroyed again.

"I went right to almost the very end, and there was space so I found a spot and I sat down, pulled my overcoat over me and hat down. We'd had no sleep, I was so tired, I'd been running everywhere and I just lay down and went fast asleep.

"I woke up and I couldn't move ... I panicked and started pushing bodies off me ... I sat up, you couldn't see anything, it was all smoke and dust, you could hear the fire blazing further away and I thought what the heck?"

Finally, a light shone and a man called out asking if anyone was alive.

Jackson called out to him, and followed the light, stepping over dead bodies. Once outside, he was told to go to a nearby school to report in. He left the baby with the man there, and then ran back to his toppled home.

This time, he was able to dig through to the basement and there, in the shelter under the stairs, was his mother, grandmother and younger brother, all safe. In fact, his entire family survived both bombings.

He spent four years in the army and was stationed all over England, Italy and finally, he spent his final nine months in Cairo.

He met his wife, Joyce, and they had one daughter in England before moving to Winnipeg. They had two more children, a daughter and a son.

Joyce passed away 18 years ago, and Jackson enjoys playing cards and the occasional visit to the Henderson Legion.

Voter turnout in Selkirk, St. Andrews, and St. Clements has mostly stayed the same over the years, with West St. Paul being the only RM that saw a larger turnout this year when compared to previous years. Voters in St. Andrews and West St. Paul elected new mayors on Oct. 24 along with several new council members while councils in Selkirk and St. Clements saw little change.

West St. Paul saw a 64.9 per cent voter turnout this year, with 2,654 out of 4,085 registered voters showing up to the polls. In comparison, Selkirk saw a 53 per cent voter turnout, one per cent lower than the 2014 election, and St. Andrews had 44 per cent of voters show up to oust the previous council.

More than 100 West St. Paul community members packed the RM's fire hall to watch their new mayor and council get sworn in last Monday evening.

Newly elected West St. Paul Mayor Cheryl Christian encouraged residents to get in touch with council, and provide input on the RM's future.

"At a time of unprecedented growth in West St. Paul, we will work with residents and developers to ensure well planned residential and commercial development in our community," Christian said. "Your new council needs your help and your input to shape the future of West St. Paul.

"Thank you for your support and for the trust you have placed in us as leaders of our community. Now the hard work begins."

Along with Christian, Ward 1 Coun. Eleanor Link, Ward 2 Coun. Giorgio Busceti, Ward 3 Coun. Dorothy Kleiber and Ward 4 Coun. Stan Parag were also sworn in last Monday evening.

Link said she's shocked at the positive response the new council has received so far.

"I'm simply blown away. Thank you to everyone who voted for us. (Mayor Christian) spoke about giving residents a stronger voice on council, and I think this is proof that we're moving in the right direction," Link said.

Holiday Alley to serve up foodie feast

Submitted

If you want to take full advantage of Holiday Alley's foodie extravagance you might want to pick up your tickets soon for the Manitoba Hydro Soup Cook-Off and the outdoor Englishstyle High Tea, which went on sale this week.

The soup cook off tickets are now available at the Riverside Grill and Community Threads and the high tea tickets are available at Ubuntu Café and Bakery.

A long line up of local chefs, bakers and restaurant owners in Selkirk have embraced Holiday Alley and are bringing their best fixings to the twoday festival.

"Holiday Alley, to me, is a celebration of our Manitoban winters," said Jana Badenhorst who dreamt up the high tea concept inspired by the Raw Almond dinners on the frozen Red River at the Forks. "It brings a sense of community pride to Selkirk, and it's a new holiday tradition in the making. We wanted to tap into that feeling by having our chefs create nostalgic dishes that remind them of spending their holidays at home. Every dish will have a story and every bite will have a memory."

Badenhorst is co-owner of Ubuntu Café and Bakery and is working alongside Riverside Grill, Roxi's by the Red Uptown Café and The Mighty Kiwi Juice Bar and Eatery to serve a sampling of 12 different treats like savory butternut squash soup, grilled feta topped with candied almonds, tourtiere and sweets like butter tarts, mint chocolate brownies and apple pudding. The spread will be accompanied by two signature tea blends from Three6Tea – Winter Grey Holiday High Tea blend and Holiday Alley cinnamon-pear blend – all served in real china cups on the street.

The Holidays at Home High Tea will begin at 2 p.m. on Saturday Dec. 1. The Soup Cook-Off is from noon to 4 p.m.

The Mighty Kiwi will introduce another new hot beverage experience for Holiday Alley this year as the owners set up a hot chocolate bar in the restaurant. Guests can buy hot chocolate with whipped cream and are then invited to decorate their beverage with 15 different toppings from crushed candy canes to caramel popcorn.

"We wanted to take a holiday favourite and turn it into something interactive for people to enjoy during the festival," said Miranda Schmidt, co-owner of the Mighty Kiwi. "It's a delicious way to bring art and food together."

Surveys from last year's and M Holiday Alley showed people Chocc wanted more food and hot On Ho beverages on the street. The volunteers and businesses involved have taken that request to heart.

"Food is love, and our Manitoban winters create a wonderful sense of comradery," said Badenhorst "Combine those elements with a beautiful table, a lovely cup of tea, and something delicious to nibble on and you

War Amps marks 100th anniversary this year

As Remembrance Day approaches, I would like to pay tribute to the amputee veterans who founded The War Amps, which marks its 100th anniversary this year.

On returning from the First World War, they came together to help each other adapt to their new reality. They then welcomed the next generation of amputee veterans following the Second World War, creating the Key Tag Service to provide them with meaningful work and a service to Canadians that continues today.

Recently I joined a young child amputee named Tiffany in laying a rose at the grave of Curley Christian, the only quadruple amputee to survive the First World War. Tiffany benefits from the Child Amputee (CHAMP) Program, just as I did as a teenager following a train accident. We paid tribute to Curley both for his sacrifices at Vimy Ridge and for helping to start a program that has assisted us and amputees across the country.

Though they considered themselves to be "ordinary guys," these war amputees served their country in wartime and continued to serve when they came home. I can say with pride that their legacy and sacrifices will be remembered through generations of amputees, like Tiffany and me, long into the future. Rob Larman

Dozens have a hoot getting up close with a great grey owl

By Justin Luschinski

As it turns out, one of Manitoba's old great grey owls really enjoys the local library.

The Gaynor Family Regional Library's Circle of Friends brought biologist and world owl expert, Jim Duncan, and his great grey owl named Oska to talk about owl conservation last Friday afternoon.

The event showcased how Duncan researches Manitoba owls, and how precious these animals are to the local ecosystem.

Duncan wants to build a connection between the local wildlife and humans, which might encourage Selkirk residents to help protect these great grey owls.

"Even though I've studied them for over 30 years, every time you encounter (an owl), the experience doesn't diminish. I still get excited," Duncan said. "In a way, owls and people have a very close relationship, because (they) kind of look like a human. I think people relate to them in ways they don't with other wildlife, and if they connect with an animal, they might do more to support wildlife conservation."

Duncan rescued Oska from a nest as a baby, and raised her in captivity for research purposes. Female great grey owls are larger than males, and they're usually the dominant one in the relationship. Originally, her name was "Oscar," but once she grew larger than any male owl, Duncan quickly changed her name to Oska.

Although Oska appears quite large, she weighs around two pounds, which allow her to perch on top of very small twigs and fly very fast when chasing prey. Great grey owls have long legs and powerful talons, and Duncan said even while wearing a leather gauntlet, if Oska gets scared, her talons could almost crush his finger.

Sharon Emilson, a resident of East Selkirk, said she loved seeing the owl

"I loved it. We have a few owls that perch around our house, and we love watching them," Emilson said. "But this one was so tame.

"It's such a beautiful creature."

Emilson was surprised to learn that Manitoba has many different owl species in the province, and was impressed at how strong Oska's talons were.

Great grey owls breed in North America, from as far as Quebec and all the way to Alaska. They prefer a forest environment with a few spaces of open land, which Manitoba has plenty of.

Duncan said that many of them nest around Selkirk and area, so it's relatively easy to spot them in the region. Great grey owls don't build their own nests, they usually use broken trees or other enclosed spaces to raise their young.

Duncan will also be hosting a winter bird-watching event. For more information, email Duncan at jduncan@ discoverowls.ca, or visit discoverowls. ca.

> VOTER TURNOUT, FROM PG. 10

St. Clements had a much lower voter turnout with 27 per cent of registered voters going to the polls.

But some people say that voter turnout numbers don't tell the whole story.

Joe Masi, the executive director of the Association of Manitoba Municipalities, says people are becoming more engaged with their local politics by running for office themselves.

"The number of candidates in 2018 was one of the highest we have ever seen. There were significant changes, the number of female councillors has significantly increased, there was a 48 per cent turnover in leadership positions," Masi said. "It shows that citizens are engaged, and they're becoming more involved with politics."

Masi said voter turnout hangs on a number of issues, including how easy it is to vote, the issues facing the RM, and the strength of the candidates. He also added that many municipalities saw a high voter turnout during this year's election, and overall voter turnout is on the rise.

Rotarians aim to 'be the inspiration' for a polio-free world

Submitted

Many readers will not remember the Polio epidemic in the summer of 1953. More than 2,000 people were hospitalized in either King George, Princess Elizabeth or King Edward hospitals in Winnipeg and kept in isolation. There were life-long consequences, and often permanent paralysis experienced by those contacting the disease (often referred to as poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis).

Thirty years ago, 1,000 children were paralyzed by polio every single day. And that is why Rotary became involved in the eradication of Polio. Since then, remarkable progress has been made.

In 2017, 430 million children in 39 countries were immunized during the campaign that year. Since 1988, Rotary members have gone from 125 polio-epidemic countries to three in 2018. Countries, region after region, have been declared polio-free. Each year the number of cases has dropped and the world is so close to seeing the eradication of this dreadful disease.

Thousands of Rotarians have travelled to the remotest parts of the world to deliver the polio vaccine to millions of children. This has been the largest campaign ever launched by Rotary in partnership with the World Health Organization. In over a decade the Bill and Linda Gates Foundation have partnered with Rotary and have pledged up to $450 million and matched Rotary's contributions 2 to 1 to help us see this fight to the end.

On Oct. 24 for every dollar Rotarians raised, the Gates Foundation gave two more. The final tally is not in yet, but it's expected to be in the millions.

If you would like to become a member of the world's largest philanthropic organization, please contact President Sharon Moolchan at smoolchan@gmail.com. You too could join Rotarians throughout the world as our logo for 2018 states "Be the Inspiration" for a polio-free world.

Theresa Beerman, the owner of The Water Shop, said Walcer was a perfect fit for their company.

"I saw him out in the community, picking up trash and cleaning up the city. He was a very strong worker, very friendly, so I immediately went over to Inclusion Selkirk, and asked if he was available to work for us," Beerman said. "He's a fantastic employee, he works hard, and he's very friendly." Walcer said he's really happy with his job.

"At first I was really nervous. I only knew (the owner), it was really nerve wracking. Now I'm used to it. I'm really happy that I have this job," the 23-year-old Selkirk resident said.

Walcer has been a part of Inclusion Selkirk's work experience program for two years, having transitioned into the program at 21-years-old. Inclusion Selkirk trains people with intellectual disabilities, giving them necessary job skills and experience, and assists them with finding work in their community once they're ready.

Selkirk MLA Alan Lagimodiere, who visited Walcer as part of Take Your MLA to Work Day on Oct. 26, said inclusive workplaces are very important.

"I can't say enough good things about the employees involved with (Inclusion Selkirk). Everyone I've met is dedicated to the job, they're committed to being here on time," Lagimodiere said. "We need to give them a chance, as soon as employers bring in an individual like (Walcer), they realize the important role they can fill in their business.

"They're a valuable part of our work-force."

Lagimodiere encourages other businesses to get in touch with Inclusion Selkirk, and hopes he can bring more awareness to the wonderful people that come from the program.

Memory Project keeps wartime stories alive

By Lindsey Enns

For Selkirk resident Bill Shead, Remembrance Day and Aboriginal Veterans Day are both a time to honour and remember those who paid the ultimate sacrifice in the name of freedom.

"It's a day to pause and remember the contributions that the Indigenous people made to serving Canada," the Peguis First Nation member said referring to Aboriginal Veterans Day, which falls on Thursday, Nov. 8. "As we are coming to grips with our history and the role Indigenous people have played in life in Canada, this is an important aspect that should be remembered."

Aboriginal Veterans Day ceremonies began in Manitoba in 1994 and they have been gaining momentum across the country ever since, Shead said.

Veteran Affairs Canada says more than 7,000 First Nations members served in the First and Second World Wars, including the Korean War. However, it is not known how many Inuit, Métis and other Indigenous people served in the three wars.

Shead, a graduate of Dalhousie University and the Canadian Forces Staff College, served 36 years in the Regular and Reserve Forces of the Royal Canadian Navy (RCN). He also served as mayor of Selkirk from 1980 to 1983, was the Prairie Regional Director General for Veterans Affairs from 1986 to 1992, and Chief Executive Offi-

Shead has also been a speaker with The Memory Project for nearly 10 years. The Memory Project is a volunteer speakers bureau made up of a community of more than 1,500 veterans and Canadian Forces members who share their stories of military service at schools and community events across the country.

The Stonewall community is extending a warm welcome to the new owners of a long-standing local business.

On Nov. 1, Gail and Alan Hiebert took over ownership of Big Block Auto and Farm Supply.

The Lockport residents have been operating a trucking business, called Alan Hiebert Trucking, for the past 25 years. Now they're ready to steer forward with their new retail opportunity.

"We're busy, for sure, but we're having fun. This is a new venture for us," Gail said.

"Our intention is to be here as much as we can and learn it all as efficiently as possible. We're really excited to meet all the new and existing customers."

They're no strangers to the area, since Alan's family has connections to both Stonewall and Marquette.

"His dad grew up in Marquette. His mom's family was from Stonewall and his grandma lived here," Gail said. "He's got many years of memories here too."

While they get to know the ropes of their new business, the couple plans to keep most things the same for now with room to grow in the future.

"This is going to be where our focus is going to be, so if there's an opportunity to expand some product lines, then we feel we can do that," Gail said.

"With our ties to the trucking industry and the construction industry in general, we feel that we can open up a little bit of a new customer base and maybe have some room for expansion."

Big Block stocks a variety of products, and they have access to even more, Gail adds.

"We have everything from your sprays and cleaners and detailing supplies to wheelbarrows and belts and implement parts and small vehicle parts," she said.

"Besides what's actually in the store physically, we have access to a ton of parts that are within a day or two away. Some of we can even get the same day since there is a lot of inventory available in Winnipeg for us as well."

Submitted

Greg Nesbitt, MLA for Riding Mountain, has proposed a private member's resolution to have the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba congratulate the Association of Manitoba Municipalities (AMM) on its 20th anniversary and extend its best wishes to the organization for years to come.

"The Association of Manitoba Municipalities provides important services to its member cities, towns and rural municipalities, such as assistance with human resources matters and with bulk purchasing of products and services," said Nesbitt.

The Association of Manitoba Municipalities was formed on Jan. 1, 1999, through the merger of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities and the Manitoba Association of Urban Municipalities. The AMM has more than 130 members representing municipalities of all sizes across the province.

The AMM will hold its next annual conference from Nov. 26 to Nov. 28 at RBC Convention Centre in Winnipeg.

Thunder defence golden against Virden

By Brian Bowman

The Interlake Thunder's defence has been real good all season.

But they were really, really good last Saturday. Interlake's defence stymied the Virden Golden Bears in an impressive 32-6 victory in the Rural Manitoba Football League semifinals in Stonewall. "It was probably the best all-around game we've played all year," said Thunder head coach Mitch Obach "Virden's very physical and a hard-nosed Obach. "Virden's very physical and a hard-nosed team and we like a physical game, too. "It was definitely one of those and, with back-to-back weeks, it adds to that animosity on the field."

Interlake led 11-0 after the first quarter and the score stayed that way at the half. Graeme Perrie had a 45-yard touchdown run and then the Thunder defence added a pair of safeties.

"The boys played great, and we had an exceptionally good outing from our defence," Obach stressed. "It was an all-around good showing. Playing two weeks in a row helped us game plan them and our coach did a great job putting a plan together that worked."

Those two first-half safeties were huge plays by the Thunder defence.

"Safeties are awesome," Obach said." They're kicking off so deep in their end that you're getting two points and great field position."

Virden pulled to within 11-6 in the third quarter but Interlake answered with a five-yard touchdown run by Colton Nedotiafko. Nedotiafko finished the game with 263 yards on the ground away as the Thunder offence stepped up.

In the fourth quarter, Interlake put the visitors

Graeme Perrie broke a 25-yard TD run (he finished with 146 rushing yards) and Karsen Karish hauled in a three-yard touchdown pass from Josh Charison.

The Thunder appears to have the ability to wear teams down as the game moves on.

"That's been our strategy all year," Obach said. "If anyone would ask if there is one area that we are really strong in, compared to the other teams in the league, I would say it's depth.

"We can use all of our guys and we really haven't played anyone on the opposite side of the ball all year."

The Thunder now advances to the provincial final this Saturday (1 p.m.) against the Swan Valley Tigers. It should be a great battle between two very good teams.

Interlake defeated Swan Valley 26-18 during the regular season in a tightly-contested game.

"It was our closest game, for sure," Obach admitted. "It was a one-point game at the half. It was a real good back-and-forth football game and I would expect nothing less on Saturday."

The Thunder is hoping that home field will be an advantage in their final game of the season.

"It was a nice boost for us this past weekend," Obach noted. "It's just that more comfortable playing at home and, not that it really means anything, but were not the ones getting on a five-hour bus ride.

"It's that much nicer when you can (play) at home."

Staff

The Manitoba Baseball Hall of Fame & Museum announced its 2019 inductees on Monday, which included Paul Edmonds, who lives in St. Andrews.

Edmonds will be inducted in the Special Category for his work in media.

For 19 years, from 1995-2013, Edmonds was the radio voice of the Winnipeg Goldeyes. He also spent one season in Alberta, and during his 20year career as a broadcaster, covered over 2,000 games. He missed only one radio broadcast due to the birth of his son.

During his broadcasts, Edmonds consistently promoted amateur baseball within Manitoba, said a media release. He encouraged Baseball Manitoba to provide him with information so he could share with his listeners.

Edmonds also often donated his time and talent to emcee Baseball Manitoba events at press conferences and banquets. His dedication to the game has been a huge benefit to baseball in our province. Baseball's loss, though, has been hockey's gain as Edmonds is currently the radio voice of the Winnipeg Jets.

He also did a great job broadcasting

Selkirk Steelers' games.

Also going in the Special Category are the Coulter Red Sox 1968, Sager family, Bob Senff – umpire and Chuck Lindsay – Pre 1950.

The individual inductees include Greg Cameron, Armin Gitzel, Dean McBride, John Robbins, Randy Robertson and Bruce Stephens.

In the Major Teams category, the Brandon Cloverleafs (2006-2012) and Carillon Sultans (1996-2003) will be entering the hall of fame.

The Small Community team inducted is the Springfield Juniors (2007-2011)

Mitchell's MJHL winning streak snapped at five games

By Brian Bowman

The bad thing about winning streaks is that they don't last forever.

Levi Mitchell learned that the hard way Saturday evening in Portage la Prairie.

After recording five-straight victories as a Selkirk Steeler, Mitchell finally lost a MJHL hockey game as the Portage Terriers beat his club 6-2.

Portage, which scored three powerplay goals on the night, put the game away with three unanswered goals in the third period.

The Steelers regained the lead midway in the second when Brett Namaka scored. Portage, though, tied the game at 9:24 of the third when Ocean Wiesblatt beat Mitchell, who had 28 saves in the game.

On Oct. 30, it was the Connor Barley show as the veteran forward scored four goals to lead Selkirk to a solid 6-3 victory over the Virden Oil Capitals at the Rec Complex.

Barley has 11 goals and 17 points in the past eight games. He is currently on an eight-game scoring streak.

Matthew Smith, with his first goal of the season, and Nate Halvorsen also scored for Selkirk.

Peter Winnemuller September 5, 1940 - October 31, 2018

After a hard fought battle, surrounded by his family and bathed in the love sent to him from every corner of the globe, Peter reached out for the hand of his beloved granddaughter Thora, and she walked him home.

One cannot put into a short obituary the many adventures of Peter. He endured many hardships - from spending 3 1/2 years of his childhood in various Indonesian concentration camps, to moving to a new country as a refugee without knowing the language, to losing a grandchild, to living 23 years with Parkinson's disease. Through it all he kept a positive attitude, worked hard, and maintained an adventurous spirit and a mischievous twinkle in his eyes. He tried to live by the Golden Rule, gave tirelessly of his time, stood up for those who couldn't stand up for themselves, treated people with respect, and knew the importance of humour.

He was a wonderful husband to Hildur for 55 years, a dedicated father, a proud and often bragging Afi, and he was a loyal friend to many.

His memory will live on through those his life has touched. His gifts have been passed on to his children and grandchildren. They will honour his memory by nurturing these gifts and sharing them.

Peter was predeceased by his granddaughter Thora Einarson, his parents Joseph and Alida Winnemuller, and Wilfred and Gerda Finnson, as well as many friends and family members with whom he now will join.

He will be missed terribly by the love of his life Hildur; children Kim and Jeff Einarson, Duane and Diane Winnemuller, and Michelle and Paul Eramchuk; grandchildren Avery and Kevin, Alida, Aidan and Soren; special family Richard, Aaron and Mina; siblings Herman and Roberta, Corrie, Harry and Karen, Elly and Bob, Joyce and Stan, Rick and Sally; many in-laws, nieces and nephews and lifelong friends.

Sincere gratitude to the staff at Tudor for the love and respect shown to Peter in his final months. Special thanks to Dr. Demsas for care and friendship.

In keeping with his wishes, cremation has taken place and a Celebration of his life will be held on Monday, November 5, 2018 at 11:00 a.m. in the Gilbart Funeral Chapel in Selkirk, Manitoba.

In lieu of flowers, Peter requested donations be made to the Khartum Shrine patient transportation fund (1155 Wilkes Ave Winnipeg R3P 1B9) or Riverdale Place Workshop (Box 609 Arborg, MB R0C 0AO), or to a charity of one's choice.

OBITUARY

Paul Wawryk

April 8th, 1941 - October 30th, 2018

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Paul.

Paul was predeceased by his wife Judy, granddaughter Cara, niece Dorothy Woods, his parents Nick and Dorothy Wawryk, his sister Muriel Carter and brothers-in-law, Ray Horwood and Dennis Boychuk.

Paul was born in Selkirk and raised in Netley.

Left to mourn are his siblings Mary (Ethyl) Horwood, Charlie Wawryk, Ken Wawryk, Beverly Runzer (Bob), and Doreen Thomas (Wayne); his daughters, Shelley (Andy), Michelle (Dale) and Leanne. He is also survived by grandchildren, great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

Paul's vocation was that of long distance trucking over 55 years. He was well suited to the job as he liked to travel and see the country. Paul met many friends along his travels to much of Canada and the USA. His last few years were spent in Yellowknife, NWT. Paul liked to collect varied and unique items be it coins, art, or some trinket that managed to catch his fancy. He always had a story about their origin. His pride and joy was his Ford Mustang Shelby which he maintained in meticulous condition. Paul was most definitely a free spirit and lived his life accordingly. Despite what appeared to be a cantankerous manner, he had a warm and generous heart and a wonderfully mischievous sense of humour. Paul... "You did it your way": you will be greatly missed.

Cremation has taken place. No funeral will be held, however a Celebration of Life in the summer of 2019.

OBITUARY

Frederick J. Lindenschmidt

It is with heavy hearts that we announce the passing of Frederick J. Lindenschmidt on October 24, 2018 at Red River Place in Selkirk, Manitoba.

Fred is survived by his wife Betty; children Fred (Marilyn), Richard (Diane), and Lisa (Rod); grandchildren Richard, Brian (Dyana), Jennifer, Thomas, Stephen and Robert; as well as great-grandchildren Alyssa and Rayna – all of whom were always able to bring a smile to his face. Also surviving Fred is his brother Eric (Rita).

Fred was born on December 7, 1930 at home in Winnipeg, Manitoba to parents Maria and Fred Lindenschmidt. He always had very fond memories of visits to his grandparents' farm in Barrie, Ontario. This is where his love of farming began.

Fred was a professional mechanical engineer, graduating from the University of Manitoba in 1954. He started working at Alpha Manufacturing, and in 1957 he became one of the founding partners of Chicago Blower Canada Ltd., now CML Northern Blower, retiring in 1986.

Fred and Betty started married life in a small apartment in the top floor of his aunt's house on St. John's Avenue, Winnipeg, in 1953. After Fred Jr. was born they built a home on McAdam Avenue in West Kildonan. Richard and Lisa soon followed.

Fred spent many long hours working to achieve his dream of owning a hobby farm. They found their ideal piece of land in St. Andrews, MB and, after several years of planting trees, moved there in 1968 when the farm started. Cattle, horses, chickens, geese, dogs and cats soon followed, and Fred had his on-site labor force to do the dirty work. That was his way of teaching his children and grandchildren a good work ethic (or figuring out how not to do it).

Then came his love of everything John Deere and many trips were made down back country roads to find yet another piece for his collection. Special trips to Rollag, MN and Austin, MB with his grand-children are fondly remembered. Fred sure loved his country drives with his family, but what he loved even more was time at the cottage with his grandchildren. They still pine over the famed chocolate-filled donuts he would bring from Kenora. Many memories were made at this little piece of heaven.

He helped us immensely, always giving freely of his time and imparting many memorable words of wisdom, and for that we will be forever grateful.

We would like to thank the caring staff at Red River Place and Dr. H. Demsas for his care.

There will be no formal funeral service; a private service will be held at a later date.

If desired, donations in Fred's memory may be made to Wildlife Haven Rehabilitation Centre (wildlifehaven.ca) or Selkirk & District Community Foundation (sdcf.ca).

OBITUARY

It is with heavy hearts we announce the peaceful passing of our mother Eva "Grace" Moar on October 31, 2018 in her 98th year with her son at her side.

She was predeceased by the love of her life Emmerson, infant daughter Wendy, five sisters, five brothers and son-in-law Eugene Bretecher. She continues to live on in the hearts of her children Donna Gordon (Barry), Maline Jenkinson (Cecil), Linda Bretecher (the late Eugene), Ian Moar (Judy), Dawn Radcliffe (Dean). She also leaves to mourn her passing 15 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren plus numerous nieces, nephews and many friends.

She was our Amazing Grace. Born in Selkirk, June 18, 1920 she started her adulthood as a waitress at Sinclair's Tea Room where she met Emmerson and was married February 13th, 1942. She was a stay at home mom and office secretary for Moar's Plumbing and Heating. At the ripe age of 56 she learned to drive. In 1980 she joined the workforce at Betel Home in Selkirk. She graduated from their Health Care Aide course and was named Miss Congeniality of her class. She loved working with staff and residents at Betel so much. After retirement she continued to act as an escort for the residents there. Well into her 80's she would walk to Betel and escort residents to Dr.'s, dentist's appointments whenever they needed to go. She enjoyed many years curling, doing crosswords, playing cards and having tea with family, neighbours and friends. She spent countless hours as a volunteer with House of Economy sometimes as a Rotary Ann and many times when they needed help. Most of all she loved time with her family. Her last six years she resided at Red River Place. Reluctant at first, she fully embraced being there.

Cremation has taken place and we will celebrate her wonderful life June 18th, 2019.

Flowers are gratefully declined but if you so wish, donations can be made in her memory to a charity of your choosing.

The family would like to thank the people of Selkirk for always taking the time to greet mom when she was out and about, the staff at Red River for their compassion and care of mom these last six years and to family and friends that visited her. Thank you Dr. Lindenschmidt. We are so appreciative of Christina Kabernik whose love and companionship was a great comfort.
